

Adriana Isvoran has a PhD in biophysics and is a professor in the Biology-Chemistry Department, West University of Timisoara. She is responsible for the computational biology section, where she teaches physics, biophysics, bioinformatics, and cheminformatics. Her group focuses on predicting pharmacokinetics profiles and toxicological endpoints, for both humans and the environment, for numerous xenobiotics and drugs.